Sonoma Clean Power Supports SRJC Gives to Benefit Solar Photovoltaic Program

Sonoma Clean Power has made a generous gift of $15,000 to the SRJC 100th Anniversary Campaign, designated to fund the solar photovoltaic program. The gift will support programs that teach students to work in the growing fields of solar power, zero energy buildings, and end-use fuel switching as technicians, planners or installers, helping them to earn professional certificates or prepare for university transfer.

"Sonoma Clean Power is enthusiastic about our partnership with SRJC, and about providing valuable resources to benefit these important fields and careers of the future."

- Kate Kelly, Public Affairs Director

In 2014, SRJC launched an ambitious and comprehensive strategic plan to guide the College into the future. One of the eight overarching goals for the College is to establish a strong culture of sustainability to promote environmental stewardship, economic vitality and social equity. As an institution, SRJC has committed to a proactive approach to implement sustainability initiatives internally and develop sustainable facilities. Some strong statements of SRJC's dedication to environmental technologies and energy conservation are the relevant instructional programs developed to educate and train students in sustainability fields. SRJC is proud to partner with Sonoma Clean Power to educate students on sustainable resources.
